[Myocardial infarct during a three-year follow-up period in elderly patients]. To assess the rate of cardiac events and factors that affect prognosis, a 3-year follow-up study was conducted in 205 old persons (average age 76) with non-Q-wave myocardial infarction. The result revealed that the number of cardiac events in the survivors had decreased by the end of the third year. However, cardiac events in those surviving beyond 1 year were still frequent, approximately 30% at the end of the third year. Analysis revealed that one of the important factors affecting the prognosis was the rate of cardiac events at discharge. The patients with a rate of more than 3% had a significantly poorer prognosis as assessed by their mortality and rehospitalization rate after 3 years.Q: SVG path elements with different stroke.
